Christmas community

The holiday spirit wasn't dampened by the rainy weather as 1,300 residents came out to celebrate Christmas on the Peninsula Nov. 28.

With venues throughout the community holding a variety of festivities – including choirs, markets, movies and the tree lighting at Miramar Plaza – the day-long event brought together 20 churches, 40 community groups and 130 volunteers.

Christmas story at Coffee With Attitude. Carollers from Seaview Pentacostal Church braved the rain to serenade the crowds with Christmas tunes at Five Corners.

Right, Bruce Waugh carves a snow chair outside the White Rock Community Centre with snow that was shipped in from the Langley Twin Rinks.
